Theres Probably No God The Dawkins stated that he preferred the wording "There is almost certainly no God". Ariane Sherine claims it is necessary to be factually accurate, [26] and that as it is impossible to disprove the existence of God it is only possible to say one 'probably' does not exist. Atheist Bus Campaign - Wikipedia To me the opposite argument is more valid - if the proportion of people in the world who don't believe in some sort of God is so small then it is likely that some sort of God exists. It appears that the author is arguing for a small probability of God existing and is not arguing for absolute certainty that God does not science. "There's Probably No God"- Is Dawkins Right? | Saints and ... As Richard Dawkins states in The God Delusion, saying 'there's no God' is taking a 'faith' position. He writes: 'Atheists do not have faith; and reason alone could not propel one to total conviction that anything definitely does not exist'. Atheist Bus Campaign » Humanists UK "There's no evidence that God doesn't exist." This argument is often offered as a last line of defense in religious debates, and the person posing it might feel very clever coming up with it. However, the premise of the argument is both flawed and ridiculous. The failure to disprove something does not constitute proof of its existence.
